Chautauqua at Norway.

The Chautauqua will be held in Norway five full days beginning July 13, mornings, afternoons and evenings. Season tickets can be obtained at a very liberal price. These tickets are transferable.

The Chautauqua will be held in a large waterproof tent seating more than a thousand people.

The program includes many notable attractions, among them Frederick Ward, the eminent Shakespearean tragedian; Lenora Sparks, prima donna soprano of the Metropolitan Opera; Ole Theobald, the famous Norwegian violinist, and Victor's Florentine Band and Neapolitan Troubadours.

Others on the list are Lee Francis Lybarger, a member of the Philadelphia bar who will lecture on "Port Barred Legions"; Andre Fridon will present his lecture, "An inside view of Mexico"; Dr. Enclid B. Rogers of Springfield, Ill., on "A living or a life."

Harold A. Tucker's Funeral.

The remains of the young man accompanied by his father were taken to Farmington and the funeral was held from the home of the family. Rev. R. P. Doreau read selections of Scripture, offered prayer and made a very sympathetic and comforting address during which he read some appropriate and comforting poems. The house was filled with friends, many from a distance, and the floral tributes for number and beauty have seldom been equaled here.

The remains were escorted to Riverside by Maine Lodge, No. 20, F. & A. M., of Farmington led by W. M. Colby L. Merrill, and the ritual was performed with solemnity at the grave. The procession was a very long one. The bearers were Judge Currier, O. Holman, H. S. Pratt, M. D. Frank Knowlton, Lawrence Marston, Frank Goldsmith, George W. Clark.

The floral offerings numbered seventy-five including, besides the gifts of the family, relatives and many individual friends, handsome tributes from the following associations: Maine Lodge, F. & A. M., Farmington; Commercial club, Norway; Class of '09, F. H. S.; Delta Upsilon, Bowdoin college; Burnham & Morrill Co.; Directors, McWain Packing Co.

Mr. Tucker was a bright boy and after completing his work in the grades took the high school course graduating in 1909. The next fall he entered Bowdoin college but deciding to prepare for business career he remained only one semester, then entered Gray's Business college in Portland, and in due time received his diploma.

Having become a youth at work with his father, the local manager of the Burnham & Morrill canning plant in this town, familiar with the details of that industry, when only 19 years old he accepted a position as manager of a corn factory in Cordova, Md. He demonstrated his business capacity and a year or two later was called to take charge of the interests of the McWain Packing Co. at East Waterford in this state.

He had the oversight of the erection of the buildings and fitted them with many labor-saving pieces of machinery, thus making the plant exceptionally convenient and desirable. The business has prospered well, we understand, under his management.

In that portion of the year when his duties at East Waterford would allow, Mr. Tucker has been the manager at Norway of the E. A. Strout farm agency and was achieving good results, with his office at Norway.

THE DRUNKEN MAN.

Today a man went staggering by. He was drunk. He had lost the tranquility from his eye. He was drunk.

He traveled with unsteady jog. He had been drinking too much grog. He was drunk. I said: "I guess he's water-logged."

He was drunk. His legs they wobbled to and fro. He was drunk. He had lost his balance to go, He was drunk.

I could not leave him a sigh. The people smiled while passing by. And said: "Old man, you're lying high." He was drunk.

His hat was tilted to one side. He was drunk. The sidewalk it was too wide. He was drunk.

With a heavy load his form was bent. The people said he owed for rent. And in his pockets not a cent. He was drunk.

He spoke, and said: "Well, Hello, dear." He was drunk. And down the street course did steer. He was drunk.

He was sailing on life's stormy seas. His legs were weakened by his knees. His pockets dotted in the breeze. He was drunk.

He says: "Well, boys, I just came down." He was drunk. He did not live in Norway town. He was drunk.

His coat was draped right up the back. Somebody hollered: "Get a hack!" He said his name was Paddy Whack. He was drunk.

The rose had blossomed on his nose. He was drunk. He wore a bran new suit of clothes. He was drunk.

He started in to cut a dash. And then he tumbled down ker-thrash. And broke his bottle all to smash. He was drunk.

I noticed that his face was pale. He was drunk. He had been drinking Adam's ale. He was drunk.

He then arose and faced the air. He ran his fingers through his hair. He was so mad he could not swear. He was drunk.

Someone led him to a post. And asked him if he'd give a toast. He was drunk. His clothes they were with mud besmeared. The people passing by they cheered. Until a policeman interfered.

Then he was quietly led away. He was drunk. And now he'll jail him to stay. He was drunk. They sent him up for thirty days. He held his try to mind his ways. And not get drunk like other jays. Not drunk.

Have pity for this wayward lad. Who did not mean to be so bad. And while you're walking down life's strand, Extend to him a friendly hand. Copyright, 1915—Frederick M. Davis, Norway, Me.

Streaked Mountain.
Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Clark have been visiting relatives in Hartford.

Ellis Whitman has a new horse.

Mrs. M. L. Whitman and daughter Hannah have returned from Topsham, where they went on business last week.

Mrs. Nora Foster spent Thursday and Friday in Auburn.

Fishermen are more plentiful than the fish in this vicinity.

Richmond Taylor came home from Lewiston ill.

Mrs. Ray Goodrich, who has been visiting at Almon Deoster's, has returned to her home in Sebek.

After ordering the grocery man to drive out a mile and a half with a yeast cake, the members of the Woman's club listen to papers showing that the increased cost of living is due to the trusts, tariff, the war, and the increased gold supply.

If the men were running the houses, the dirt would be swept under the sofa, where it wouldn't make all this bother of house cleaning.

Life will always be to a large extent what we ourselves make. Each mind makes its own little world. The cheerful mind makes it pleasant and the discontented mind makes it miserable.

—in thousands of households, people overeat, and their stomachs and livers suffer for it the next day, and even the day following. Ordinarily a good, big dinner hurts no one when some work is done after it. But Sunday is rest-day, and the stomach doesn't get the help of the usual exercise, and sometimes it is given too much to do. In such cases, "L. F." Atwood's Medicine helps the digestion, acts on the bowels and carries off the bile before any harm is done. It is an old family remedy, perfectly safe for even the children, and a good medicine to keep in the house for sudden attacks of indigestion, biliousness and sick headache.

—"Ye Old Songs" words and music of sixty popular songs sent free on receipt of one outside yellow wrapper from the bottle, together with your opinion of our Medicine.

PERSONS OF NOTE

of Interest to Oxford County People.

By C. F. WHITMAN

LEON M. SMALL, ESQ.

Leon M. Small of Mexico, who is a candidate in the primaries for the office of sheriff of Oxford County, was born in Roxbury, Me., March 23, 1876. His parents moved to Norway, when he was quite young, where they resided until the son was twelve years of age. He graduated with his town, for four years Mr. Small was deputy sheriff. For a part of this time he was deputized in Franklin County. He takes a leading part in the affairs of his village and town and for the last five years has been chairman of the Republican committee of Mexico.

He has always been a Republican, but his family has always been Democratic.

A brother is now serving as a Deputy Sheriff at Rumford Falls. Of his political faith Mr. Small states: "I feel out of a Democratic nest when a boy, and never got back in."

As Deputy Sheriff he was a most efficient officer. At Rumford Falls, with so many different races of foreign born people, it is often very difficult to enforce Maine prohibitory laws. Many people come from countries which have no such laws and their social customs there are totally different from those they find here. The most of them fall into our ways and become good citizens, but some fall into other ways and often drift into lawlessness and crime. No rule has yet been found to separate these classes before coming here. Could there be, it would prove a national blessing. Not all of the criminal classes however, are foreigners. Some of the worst are native born.

It was thought when the project of making Rumford Falls a great business center was started, by putting in all deeds of real estate a provision of forfeiture of the land where intoxicating liquors were habitually sold or dispensed, that it would cure the evil—enforce it, as it were, something like the famous order of Gen. B. F. Butler in New Orleans, La., during the Civil War, against women insulting our soldiers.

The General's order accomplished its purpose without a single case occurring under it. I have noted too, that trials in court, unfit for refined ears always empty the room of the female portion of the spectators when the Judge remarks:

"Before beginning the trial of this case, we will take a recess of a few minutes to permit all ladies to retire. I have often thought his admonition should have included men not concerned in the case. The forfeiture mentioned in Rumford Falls conveyances of real estate here, has not completed the desired object and I have never heard of a single instance of any attempt to invoke it."

Mr. Small has the ability and tact required to enforce the laws in his vicinity and in the county. It is claimed that a sheriff located there could have better results from the efforts of his deputies by their being under his constant personal supervision, and that he would better understand the conditions coming daily to his notice and could direct what was best to be done. I do not now recall a single instance during Mr. Small's term of service where his integrity or ability as a faithful and efficient officer was ever called to question.

Gasoline Stored.
There is no longer any mystery as to the extraordinary rise in the price of gasoline, if indeed, there ever was. The statement from the U. S. Dept. of the Interior, of which no fewer than 100,000,000 barrels have been stored, is selling in the market at from $2 to $2.15 a barrel, is not borne out by any other apparently authoritative figures, which retail price at $1.65. But everyone who drives a motor-car knows that the retail price has gone skyward by leaps and bounds. This has been an unwarranted drain upon the pocket of the individual owner, and an injury to the automobile business as well. The manufacturers have not felt the effects at all, probably their industry was never so profitable as now; but dealers in supplies and garage owners are bound to suffer from the economies which the owners of cars will feel compelled to practice.

SCATTERED FAR AND WIDE.

It will be remembered that we printed the "Historical Sketch of North Waterford Congregational Church" in the Advertiser. This was written by Mrs. Ellen M. Davenport and the following letter is from a letter written to Mrs. Davenport that will be read with interest.

Dear Mrs. Davenport,
I received recently a newspaper clipping containing your "Historical Sketch of North Waterford Congregational Church," and wish to express my thanks for preparing this interesting sketch. I am very glad to think there are those who have not "forgotten John, Horatio, Lulu and little Arthur," in spite of the fact that "they too are grown to mature years." You may be sure that none of the above-mentioned ever forgot North Waterford with its beautiful and attractive surroundings—including the swimmin'-hole in Crooked River, the trout holes in Cole Brook, and many other feature dear to the heart of boyhood! The very thought of those things makes all the intervening years drop off, and sends the youthful blood tingling through the veins once more.

And what a host of memories is called up by that list of names of the early members of the church—that church where I used to play at the janitor act of firing up on winter mornings, and ringing that bell (whose wonderful advent from the Menely Bell Foundry of Troy, N. Y., I so vividly remember!) The Greens and Houshorns and Horns and Saunders and Watsons and Jewetts—and practically the whole list I well remember. And how often I have wondered how many of them were still in the land of the living, and where they might be scattered to.

This clipping was sent me by my mother, who, as you perhaps know, is now Mrs. J. L. Cozad, living at 11432 Mayfield Road, Cleveland, Ohio, and still pretty spry for an old lady of nearly 89.

She will be that if she lives than likely of this year, as she is more so than I do. ## SUPREME JUDICIAL COURT.

Justice Madigan is presiding at the May term of the Oxford S. J. court, which opened Tuesday at Rumford. The day was devoted to the empanelling of the juries and assignment of cases.

G. W. Q. Jordan of Woodstock was elected foreman of the second jury.

Some 20 naturalization cases were before the court Wednesday forenoon. Several small cases are assigned.

The indications are for a very short term, less than a week.

Court is being held in the Business

Men's club rooms.

The case of Peter Keshgarian vs. E. A.

Maria to recover $250 said to be the purchase price of a photo studio in Rum-ford, occupied the attention of the S. J.

court the greater part of the day.

Wednesday. The plaintiff claimed that

Maria bought the studio in February and had not paid for it as he had agreed to do. The defendant on the other hand said he had paid all but $45. The jury was out but a short time and returned a verdict of $252.41 for the plaintiff.

The forenoon was devoted to naturalization, 18 receiving their papers.

Late in the afternoon, the court listened to evidence relating to the location of the town line between Sumner and Woodstock. It was claimed that the line had been changed within three years.

The court reserved his decision.

Historical Events.

The shot that was heard round the world kindling the Revolution in 1775 was fired at Lexington on April 19. Congress declared war against Mexico after a border skirmish on April 25, 1846, and that incident was made the official pretext for an action that had long been agitated. Fort Sumter was attacked on April 12, 1861, and the first blood of the Civil war was shed in April at Baltimore. April was also the month which marked the close of the Rebellion with the surrender of Lee at Appomattox. The assassination of Lincoln was another

April tragedy.

On April 20, 1898, Congress declared

Cuba free and our Minister Woodford received his passport at Madrid.

In three days President McKinley called for volunteers, so that the vernal month was packed with the preliminaries of the Spanish war, though the actual inflammatory cause, the sinking of the Maine, preceded these events by two months.

This every historical episode was the waged grand impetus from an April event, except the war of 1812. This second struggle against England was brewing for a dozen years and it is difficult to point out one incident which signalizes the beginning of the war spirit. Perhaps the most flagrant episode was the attack of the British frigate Leopard on the United States frigate Chesapeake, but that occurred on June 27, 1807, and preceded actual hostilities by five years.

If one insists on forcing the parallel he may say that after the embargo had been repealed in the closing days of John

Adams' administration, President Madison renewed the proposal on April 1, 1812,

and that was recognized as a preparation for the outbreak which came with a formal declaration in June. However, in view of the chaotic beginnings of this war extending over a decade, it is better not to press the theory too far in this instance.

Other exceptions to be noted are the Barbary-war, Philippine insurrection and Indian troubles, but these were all minor affairs. However, despite such deviations from the general rule, the persistence of this coincidence, so far as American history is concerned, is as remarkable as the fact that so many of our great men have been born in February; Washington

GUARDED SALMON IN CROOKED RIVER.

Along the banks of the Crooked River there stalked a straight, tall man, with his shoulders thrown back and head held high. He carried a gun in his shoulder, a real old-style gun that loaded via the muzzle, and he peered sharply into the darkness each time he took a step.

He was on guard, the faithful sentinel of the State fish hatchery that once was located on the banks of Crooked River, but now is to be found at Raymond.

The time when this nightly vigil was kept so faithfully was fully a quarter of a century ago. The man on guard was the manager, or superintendent of the hatchery, and he was a Civil war veteran. He mounted as full of courage as a catamount is of fight. He stood simply because of what a man, now a Government officer in Portland, did.

Shortly before the incidents here related happened, there was a great fire at the hatchery at Crooked River. Many of the residents in the neighborhood who had followed the time-honored custom of catching salmon from the river whenever they pleased—and they generally pleased to do so in the fall when the fish had come up to spawn—didn't take kindly to the hatchery idea. They felt that their rights were being encroached upon and they decided to do something.

As a result of this sentiment, a crowd collected and one dark night—all night—for centuries there are dark— they raided the hatchery.

It was not the hatchery itself that was the particular object of their attentions, but the water held back by a rude stone dam. Through this dam 30 weirs opened House, May 20.

At the meeting of the Evergreen Lodge, to pass to a point above the dam. They O. E. S., Alice Nulty was given a shower in honor of her approaching marriage to Dr. Ralph Bicknell. An entertainment was given consisting of piano solos by Mrs. Winifred Roberts and mandolin and piano duets by Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Partridge. In the game of "Advertise eggs. Lanterns were placed at stated intervals around the pool to furnish light.

On the night of the great raid, the superintendent of the hatchery was in his house a short way from the river. He happened to look out of the window and noticed that one of the lights on the bank of the pool was being moved. Suspecting something was wrong, he started for the door and as soon as he had opened it he became convinced that all was not right. He was confronted by two men armed with shot-guns whose faces were blackened. The superintendent was solemnly warned not to try anything or something else would happen. He calmed down, and returned to the house.

The pool was stripped of its salmon, and to this day no one has ever been apprehended for the raid.

Not long after the ravishing of the pool, a new superintendent was appointed, a Civil war veteran, a man who did not fear anything that walked, crawled or flew, and said to himself, "We'll call him Jimmy. He was a particular friend of the Government official who staged the joke against him and was very fond of the young man.

One night, the officer, after consulting with some friends, printed a most wonderful warning. It would serve as a model for all time to Black-Handers. In it dire threats were threatened to be awaiting Jimmy that night. Among the events that lay in wait for him were particular details of his house. He was to be lashed to the ridgepole of his house, the house was to be tipped into the river, and Jimmy was to float down stream until he grounded and there he was to stay for other things, just what has now been forgotten.

The joking officer took this wonderful creation and went to Jimmy's house. He pasted it on the door and went inside. The officer sat and talked a while and soon Jimmy left the house to do some work about the hatchery. He went out by the door that bore the warning, but didn't notice it. When he came back, however, the big white sheet struck his eye through the darkness, for it was in the early morning, Jimmy saw it, unimpeded it and took inside.

The superintendent tried to read the placard, but couldn't.

"Here, Tom, you read this," he said to the friend. Tom couldn't seem to get along with the awful message, so the officer was appealed to. The joker read the pronouncement with all the solemnity befitting a message of such import. As he proceeded, Jimmy became nervous and agitated in his chair. When the reading was concluded, the superintendent exclaimed:

"The old Jimmy to the ridgepole! Lash Jimmy! We'll see. Tom, you stand guard until midnight and I'll stick the rest of the night."

Jimmy rose from his place and took from its rest on the wall an old gun that he had used in the war, a typical muzzle loader. He prepared to take his vigil.

"Lash old Jimmy to the ridgepole, will they?" he continually exclaimed.

"That night Tom stood guard until 12 o'clock and Jimmy was the faithful sentinel for the rest of the night. When Jimmy came to break up on his day, he began to practice shooting at a stump 50 yards away in the river. At night, he continued his lonely vigil by the banks of the Crooked River and guarded the salmon.

No poachers came. Nobody else came, and at the end of the week, Jimmy was convinced that the uninvited visitors had been frightened away. He gave up his sentinelship and not to this day does he know that a joke was played on him. The Government officer has never told him—Sunday Press.

PURIFYING PLANT.

The hypochlorite plant at the Sebago Lake village shore installed by the Portland Water District trustees, which has been in operation for a few weeks, is nicely performing the service expected of it. This purifying station is located at the mouth of a brook that flows through the village and empties in the lake near the Maine Central railroad depot.

While there is at present no evidence of contamination from this source, the trustees thought it best to take timely precaution and had the hypochlorite treatment provided for. The plant is operated automatically and from its installation has worked to perfection.

Tests just now show the complete success of this means of purification. Water taken from the brook showed the presence of bacteria to the extent of 5,100 cubic centimetres, while after the hypochlorite treatment there was hardly any bacteria. The test for B. coli disclosed the presence of this dangerous matter in all of the five samples from the brook, but after the treatment the water was entirely free from B. coli.

A clean mouth is essential to good health.

THE TIME OF THE SINGING OF BIRDS.

Or Count Your Blessings.

"So amid the conflict, whether great or small, Do not be discouraged; God is over all. Count your many blessings; angels will attend, Help and courage give you till your journey's end."

The joyous springtime has come again, happy song birds are flying about in the shade trees near by, and the budding leaves and flowers have appeared. Today a kind friend has placed a bunch of beautiful Mayflowers, trailing arbutus on the stange white hall, and the sweet fragrance reminded me of my childhood days, when in company with my dear young friends I would go to the groves in search of them, or any kind we could find and take them home to mother.

I am eighty-six years old, but as I went out today for a little walk, I found nice dry sidewalks and people were out clearing their lawns that already began to look fresh and green. This was the first time I had been out since fall, and it had been fifty years since I used to come to Norway. Every one I met seemed happy, I guess they were "counting their blessings," for I can say that I felt so, for I could walk along very nearly as spry as any of them for a short distance. I told my friend I thought I could walk a mile! Some I met were bowed with age, the infirmities of ill health, and doubtless found it hard to look on the bright side, but if we will we can count a great many blessings every day. I can enumerate quite a number that I did not have a year ago, so I'll take courage. The young people near by here had better be careful if they don't want to be caught some evening hanging their pretty May baskets.

I read these words today and they seemed so good I want to pass them on. "Sunshine and shadow mingle in every life. Joy and sorrow, success and failure walk hand in hand. Let us try to forget the things which vex and tire us, the worrying things which cause our souls to forget, the hopes that cherished long ago are still denied us, let us forget. Let us forget our brothers' faults and failings. Let us remember the sacrifice of love, the generous giving; when friends were few, the hand clasp warm, and strong, the fragrance of each, of holy living, yes, remember long. What- ever things are great and true and gracious, what love of God or man has rendered precious, let us remember long. For 'God is over all, He created all things.'"

The writings of the great and good Josephus, a historian living in the time of Christ, are very interesting, on this subject he writes, "God is a being every- where perfect and happy, the beginning, the middle and the end of things. We see His works, the light, the heavens and the earth, the sun and the moon, the waters, the creation of animals, the productions of fruits. These things had God made. All men ought to follow this being."

There ought also to be but one temple for one God, this temple ought to be common to all men, because He is the common God of all men.

May we ever try to keep in remembrance this precious verse found in Luke 11:28, "Blessed are they that hear the word of God and keep it." Blessed are they that do His Commandments, Blessed, blessed, blessed are they."

Mrs. Sarah E. Bates-Bartlett.

Golden Wedding.
Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Flint celebrated their golden wedding at their home, Wednesday, May 3.

Mr. Flint was the son of Daniel and Susan Towne Flint and was born Feb. 6, 1837, on the farm where W. E. Canwell now lives. This place was cleared by his grandfather, Ephraim Flint, who was one of the first settlers in town. Mrs. Flint was the daughter of Joseph and Eliza Jordan. Flint was born Oct. 1, 1845, on the farm adjoining the one which has been their home for fifty years and where they now live. They are the oldest couple living in town. Mrs. Flint has been an invalid for twelve years and these busy hands which had toiled so willingly for her loved ones have become almost helpless and have lain idle for long years. With what patient cheerfulness she has borne her affliction only those who have loved and cared for her can tell.

Mr. and Mrs. Flint were married in her father's home, May 3, 1866, by Rev. Samuel Gould and the last meal in her old home was eaten at midday; then in the afternoon the young couple went across the field to the new home which was in readiness for them, and there they have lived and loved and shared each other's joys and sorrows for fifty years under the same roof that shelters them today.

Four children came to bless their union and make their home happier, and they are more fortunate than most in that they still have them all in their home to be their help and comfort in their declining years, and where they are so much needed to care for the invalid mother.

Mr. Flint is quite well and active for one of his years. He has lived in Albany the whole of his life with the exception of two years which were spent in Providence, R. I., just before the war, when he was a young man.

Mr. Flint has one half-brother, Parker Flint, but he was unable to be present. Mrs. Flint has two brothers, Leonard Flint of Norway, and Dexter Flint of Watford. The brother, Dexter, was present. Also one sister, Mrs. Sarah Woodsum of Norway, was unable to be there.

Thirty-four friends and relatives gathered to extend their congratulations and show their esteem for this worthy couple who stand so high in the regard of their townpeople. A bountiful dinner was served at noon which went to prove that the noted culinary skill of Mrs. Flint has surely been handed down to her daughters. A. G. Bean entertained the company with selections on the phonograph. Their friends wish them many more happy years added to the fifty already lived so honestly and uprightly.

Which Do You Prefer?

It is important for reasons of health and practical economy for every housekeeper to ask herself this question:

"Do I prefer a pure baking powder like Royal, made of cream of tartar derived from grapes, or am I willing to use a baking powder made of alum or phosphate, both derived from mineral sources?"

The names of the ingredients printed on the label show whether the kind you are now using or any brand, new or old, that may be offered is a genuine cream of tartar powder, or merely a phosphate or alum compound.

Royal Baking Powder contains no alum nor phosphate.

HIRAM

Robert K. Brazier, the oldest man in Hiram, will be 88 years old on May 19. We hope that many years will send him cordial greetings on that day. His long and diligent life as a shoemaker has been of great service to three or four generations. His wife died some years ago, and he lives alone in East Hiram village, and does his own work. He still works at his trade as he has for some seventy years. He was a delegate to the first Republican Convention ever held in Maine on Paris Hill in 1854, and we are positive that he is the last member of that convention now living. He holds the Boston Post gold-headed cane, which has been held in succession by Elias Gould, aged 95; George W. Osgood, 91; Andrew Merrifield, 95.

Bertha Stacy, the popular and successful teacher in the Hiram Hill school, aided by her fifteen pupils, has cleaned up the school-house lot, and arranged some nice flower beds. Our recollection of 74 years in school matters does not recall an incident of the kind in Hiram before. They have also a flag.
